For me it is one of life's great mysteries as to why this game is only rated as "mixed".

Graphics look good, combat is simple but entertaining, story is reasonably interesting... What more could want??

To conclude I have much preferred this to pretty much all of the other 2D spaceship games on steam, even those that have very favourable reviews!. The game is frustratingly half-baked. There are all sorts of mechanics that, instead of being fun, are just tedious. Trading isn't worth the effort cause you have to keep track of station prices yourself and the quantities so low that you can't make much money per transaction.

If you die, you lose everything on your ship without any way to recover it.

If you screw up on a key mission and, say, lose your escort, you can't go back because there's only one save and the game autosaves constantly.

It's a shame cause the game has the makings of something really fun.
